VISUAL AND TEXT FEATURES:

- 5) By perusing through the magazine, what can we guess this chapter will be about? How do we know that?
- 6) As you are perusing the contents of this online magazine, notice the visual features and text features that are presented.
- 7) As a class we will discuss “features.” What are features? Features are characteristics; special details that help us understand and remember information.

- 8) Nonfiction includes features that help us to navigate the text and learn information about the text. They are like signs. They help us to find our way.
- 9) Visual features: These features help us picture something. Some examples are photographs, illustrations, drawings, diagrams, charts, graphs, and maps.
- 10) Text features: These features are made up of words. Some examples are the use of bold print, captions on photographs, titles, labels, headings, index, table of context.
- 11) In class, students will name some of the features that they find in the KIDS DISCOVER "The Stone Ages and Early Cultures" Module 2 and will note the page number that these features are found.
- 12) Make a list of the visual features that you notice. List the visual features and the page number where you notice that feature in the template below.
- 13) Make a list of the text features that you notice. List the text features and the page number where you notice that feature in the template below.
- 14) Why are visual and text features helpful as we read and learn? Why do visual and text features make it easier to read, learn, and remember?
